

A Letter to a Friend

Dear Harry,

I am sorry to hear that you have nowhere to study and are worried about money. Thank you for sharing your worries about your dad losing his job. I think I can offer you some advice.

About your problem of having nowhere to study, I think it is not a big issue. If I were you, I would persuade my brother to share the desk with me. I would also talk to my parents about it. Perhaps my parents would buy me a new desk! Also, you may go to the public library near your home. It is a quiet place for you to study, and you can find a lot of books that are useful there.

As for your worry about money, I think you can find a part-time job to help your Dad. You can also stay at home so that you don't need to spend money. I believe your good friends will not mind that you don't have enough money to go out with them.

I hope the advice is useful. Please write to me again if you need any more help.

Best wishes,
Candace

Teacher's Feedback: A good and well-organized piece of writing. You tackle each of Harry's problems with a new paragraph, which makes the structure very clear. Quite good! (Mr. Kwong Hoi Kit)
