

An Exciting Adventure

1C Marco Chan

One day, a rich lady decided to relax herself and drove her car to the country park. When she arrived, she saw some light flashing through the forest. Feeling curious, she walked into the forest.

After a while, she saw a beautiful castle. Then she peeped through the window but she could see nothing. Later, she found out that the door was unlocked, so she opened the door. As she entered the castle, she saw a big television.

“You must use your real strength to finish three games. If you win all the games, then you can leave the castle. If you lose, you will die,” the big television said. The lady was very afraid and wanted to leave. However, it was too late because the door was already closed.

So she played the first game which was Chinese chess. She felt happy because it was her favourite pastime. At last, she won the game and she could play the second game. The second game was Sudoku. She needed to complete the game faster than the computer. Luckily, she completed the game 5 seconds ahead of the computer. The final game was Monopoly. This game was very difficult as she had to earn more money than the other players. Eventually, she was lucky enough to win the game. She felt very relieved.

Finally, she left the castle and she went home immediately. After that, she wrote a book about the experience in the castle. The title of the book is called “An Exciting Adventure”.

Teacher’s Feedback : The story has a very interesting opening which draws the readers’ attention. You have used a wide range of vocabulary and sentence structure! Keep up the good work! (Miss Elloise But)

Food For Thought : Would the story be more vivid if the writer could make good use of the direct speech and further develop the plot?
