

A Radio Programme

4C Lau Ka Yee

Dear Chris,

How are you these days? We haven't met for a long period of time. I am very busy at the moment because I am preparing a radio programme. The preparation process is very interesting. Let me share my experience with you.

My group has been preparing a radio programme for students. We have started preparing the poster for the programme. A good poster is very important to a programme. It affects the audience's impression of the programme. We use orange as the background colour so as to grab the readers' attention. We have a catchy slogan, 'Relax and Learn'. It is short and easy to read and remember. We have also invited a brilliant student to help us design and produce the poster.

In the programme, we will cover two topics. The first topic is 'Exciting places to go in Hong Kong' and the second one is 'Great gadgets'. When choosing the topics, we agreed easily without having any arguments.

What we will cover in the first topic are the exciting places to go to in Hong Kong. People always work and study. During the holidays, they would like to go somewhere to relax. So, I think my audience will like this topic. I want to recommend to them some special places other than theme parks such as Ocean Park and Disneyland where everyone has been before. Hong Kong Wetland Park is a great place to visit. You can see and learn about wildlife there. You can find walking trails, bird rides as well as exhibition galleries and a resource centre. I have invited James Chan, a staff member of Wetland Park, to participate in the broadcast. He will help us understand the Wetland Park in depth. I think the audience will learn more about nature and plants and wildlife in Hong Kong.

People will find the second topic very interesting. Nowadays, everyone is interested in electronic products. They can't live without them. They might want to learn more about these products. Therefore, I have invited a gadget shop owner to talk about the functions of different gadgets. I have also searched for some information about the latest products to share in the programme.

It's time to say goodbye. I'm off to bed. See you later.

Love,
Jackie

Teacher's Feedback : The part about Wetland Park is clear and organized. You have given logical and sensible reasons for selecting this topic to be covered in your programme. You may share with Chris your personal feelings and reflection on the work progress. (Miss Chan Mei Ling)
