

An Honest Girl

4B Ng Hoi Kwan

The local police called our principal last week. The police praised a student of our school because she had done a good thing. Guess what? She found a man's wallet on a bus and she took it to the police station! It was such a respectable act and we should learn from her. Let me briefly talk about what happened.

When the girl was travelling on a bus, she found a wallet on the floor of the bus. She looked around but nobody seemed to be searching for something. She thought the owner of the wallet might be looking for it. Therefore, she decided to take the wallet to the police station.

The police praised her honesty because the wallet had over HK$4000, the owner's identity card and bank cards in it. The police asked her for some basic information and then let her go. After she left the police station, she needed to go home as quickly as possible because she had to revise for her examinations. The girl didn't tell anyone about this. Two days later, the police telephoned our principal to praise her honesty.

Our principal was very happy after hearing this news. She decided to recommend the girl for the Good Citizen Award. As the girl did not want other students to know who she was, the principal just told the school about the good thing she did. This incident taught us to be honest.

Teacher's Feedback : You have done a good job and expressed your ideas clearly. You have also used an appropriate tone for a news story. (Miss Lam Ching)
